NEW QUESTION: 1

Which is a benefit of effective risk management?

- A. Guarantees business benefits will be delivered
- B. Staff members are better prepared to respond to incidents
- C. Removes the organization's need to take risks
- D. Activity plans are agreed before the activity commences

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2

You have edited /etc/profile to include the lines:

dennis_says=hello
export dennie_says

You have also edited /etc/skel/local.profile to include the line:

```
dennis_says=world

You now create a new user account brian, and specify use of the bash shell. When brian logs in and enters Echo $dennis_says What will he see, and why?

- A. hello, because the local.profile entry is not automatically sourced on login
- B. world, because the local.profile entry will be executed last
- C. hello, because the global /etc/profile entry overrides the local.profile entry
- D. hello, because the value specified in local.profile was not exported
- E. nothing, because the variable was not exported in local.profile

Answer: B

Explanation:

The $HOME/.profile file is an initialization file that is executed after the /etc/profile when logging in to the Bourne or Korn shell. The file contains user preferences for variable settings. If the ENV variable is set to .kshrc, the .kshrc file executes every time a new shell begins execution. The $HOME/.profile is copied from the /etc/skel/local.profile file by the Administration Tool when creating a new account.

Note: /etc/skel/local.profile

Per-system configuration file for sh/ksh/ksh93/bash login sessions, installed for new users
