For security implementation, the IT Security Manager Job role hierarchy includes the Data Access Administration Duty role, which is entitled to manage data access.

For which task is the "Manage Data Access Sets Task" used?

- A. viewing, treating, or updating data access sets used to secure ledger and ledger sets
- B. creating data and function roles In Request management
- C. nothing; cannot be used anywhere
- D. viewing, creating, or changing a data roles template
- E. securing a common object such as an attachment category of a profile option

Answer: A

Explanation:

Manage Data Access Sets

Data access sets define a set of access privileges to one or more ledgers or ledger sets.

The information on ledgers that are attached to data access sets are secured by function security. Users must have access to the segment values associated with the data access sets to access the corresponding GL account.

In the security reference implementation, the IT Security Manager job role hierarchy includes the Data Access Administration Duty role, which is entitled to manage data access sets (the entitlement is Define General Ledger Data Access Set). This entitlement provides the access necessary to perform the Manage Data Access Sets task in General Ledger. Reference: Oracle Fusion Applications Security Guide, Manage Data Access Sets
