When using "Cluster resource percentage" for host failover capacity in vSphere HA Admission Control, the total resource requirements are calculated from which two values? (Choose two.)

- A. Total vCPUs assigned to each VM.
- B. Average active memory on each VM over time.
- C. Memory reservations on each VM.
- D. CPU reservations on each VM.
- E. Total memory assigned to each VM.
- F. Average CPU usage on each VM over time.

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

vSphere HA uses the actual reservations of the virtual machines. If a virtual machine does not have reservations, meaning that the reservation is 0, a default of 0MB memory and 32MHz CPU is applied.

Computing the Current Failover Capacity

The total resource requirements for the powered-on virtual machines is comprised of two components, CPU and memory.

vSphere HA calculates these values.

The CPU component by summing the CPU reservations of the powered-on virtual machines. If you have not specified a CPU reservation for a virtual machine, it is assigned a default value of 32MHz (this value can be changed using the `das.vmcminmhz` advanced option.)

The memory component by summing the memory reservation (plus memory overhead) of each powered-on virtual machine.
