NEW QUESTION: 1

You plan to deploy Windows 7 by using a virtual hard disk (VHD).

You need to ensure that when a computer starts from the VHD, the Windows 7 installation programs will run the out-of-box-experience (OOBE) portion of the setup.

What should you do?

- A. Copy install.wim from the Windows 7 installation media to the VHD.
- B. Use ImageX to apply install.wim from the Windows 7 installation media to the VHD.
- C. Start the computer by using the Windows Preinstallation Environment (Windows PE) and then run Diskprep.exe.
- D. Start the computer by using the Windows 7 installation media and then select Install now.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

WIM images are file-based and can be installed on a VHD or placed on a network share for distribution.

You can store several images in the same WIM file.

Talks about Capturing the Installation onto a Network Share, but still applies.

You can capture an image of your reference computer by using Windows PE and the ImageX tool. Then you store that image on a network share. Alternatively, on a computer running Windows 7 Enterprise or Ultimate edition, you can store the image on a VHD and make that VHD bootable. To capture the installation image you have created on your reference computer to a network share, perform the following procedure:

Insert your Windows PE media into your reference computer and restart the computer. As before, you may have to override the boot order to boot from the CD/DVD-ROM drive. If so, select the appropriate function key to override the boot order during initial boot.

Windows PE starts and opens a command-prompt window. Use the ImageX tool located on your Windows PE media to capture an image of your reference computer installation. For example, if your optical drive is drive E:, your installation is on drive C:, and you want to capture the image on drive D:, you would enter: `e:\imagex.exe /capture C:d:\installationimage.wim "my Win7 Install" /compress fast /verify`

Copy the image to a network location. For example, enter: `net use y: \\network_share\images copy d:`

`\myimage.wim y:`

If necessary, provide network credentials for appropriate network access. Your image is now on volume

NEW QUESTION: 2

Scenario: An administrator needs to ensure that the XenServer pool database in a two-server pool is highly available. However, one of the XenServer hosts has failed and is NOT recoverable. The administrator now must re-establish high availability using a new host. The existing host has taken the master role.

Which step should the administrator take to recover the backup pool information to the new XenServer host and ensure that it is highly available with the existing XenServer master?

- A. Restore the pool metadata to the new host.
- B. Create a new pool and restore the metadata to the new host.
- C. Restore the pool metadata to the running host.
- D. Add the new host to the existing pool.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3

A newborn girl's father expresses concern that the newborn does not have good control of her hands and arms. It is important for the father to realize certain neurological patterns that characterize the newborn:

- A. Purposeless, uncoordinated movements of the arms are indicative of neurological dysfunction.
- B. Mild hypotonia is expected in the upper extremities.
- C. Function progresses in a head-to-toe, proximal-distal fashion.
- D. Asymmetrical movement of the extremities is not unusual and will disappear with maturation of the central nervous system.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

(A) Term neonates are predominantly in a flexed position with strong active muscle tone that increases.

Newborns are slightly hypertonic. (B) Neonatal movements may be jerky and uncoordinated as the neonate works against gravity in contrast to the buoyancy of the amniotic fluid. Jerky movements must be differentiated from the tremors of hypoglycemia, hypocalcemia, and neurological dysfunction. (C) Growth of the newborn progresses in a cephalocaudal, proximal-distal fashion. Knowledge regarding infant development may facilitate parental involvement and infant stimulation. (D) Asymmetrical movements of the extremities are indicative of neurological dysfunction.
