NEW QUESTION: 2

Which mechanism does Cisco recommend for CE router interfaces that face the service provider for an EVPL circuit with multiple EVCs and multiple traffic classes?

- A. WRED
- B. tail drop
- C. HCBWFQ
- D. LLQ

Answer: C

Explanation:

In a simple handoff, packets may be discarded in the service provider network, either because of congestion on a link without an appropriate QoS policy or because of a policer QoS configuration on the service provider network that serves to rate limit traffic accessing the WAN core. To address these issues, QoS on the CE device is applied at a per-port level. A QoS service policy is configured on the outside Ethernet interface, and this parent policy includes a shaper that then references a second or subordinate (child) policy that enables queueing within the shaped rate. This is called a hierarchical CBWFQ (HCBWFQ) configuration.
