NEW QUESTION: 1

Fortune Tellers

A young couple entered the restaurant in Andy's view. They were holding hands.

Andy sat back down in his chair. He felt sick. He turned and faced his father, who was eating xǎi.

"What's the matter, son?" asked his father. "I thought you were going to the birthday party."

"It's too late."

"Are you sure?"

Andy nodded. He looked at the plate of xǎ'i. He wanted to bury his face in it.

"Hi, Andy." A voice came from behind.

Andy looked up. He recognized the beautiful face, and he refused to meet her eyes. "Hi, Jennifer," muttered Andy, looking at the floor.

"You didn't miss much, Andy. The party was dead. I was looking for you, hoping you could give me a ride home. Then I met Tim, and he was bored like me. And he said he'd take me home....

Andy, do you want to eat with us? I'll introduce you to Tim."

Andy said, "No, I'm eating xǎ'i with my father."

"Well, I'll see you in school then, okay?"

"Yeah." And Andy watched her socks move away from his view.

Andy grabbed a chunk of xǎ'i. The rice and beans stuck to his fingernails. He placed the chunk in his mouth and pulled it away from his fingers with his teeth. There was a dry bitter taste. But nothing could be as bitter as he was, so he chewed some more.

The bitterness faded as the xǎ'i became softer in his mouth, but it was still tasteless. He could hear the young couple talk and giggle. Their words and laughter and the sounds of his own chewing mixed into a sticky mess. The words were bitter and the laughter was tasteless, and once he began to understand this, he tasted the sweetness of xǎ'i. Andy enjoyed swallowing the sticky mess down. Andy swallowed everything down- sweetness and bitterness and nothingness and what he thought was love.

What is the most reasonable conclusion to make from the statement in the first paragraph, "He felt sick."?

A. Andy was upset when he saw Jennifer holding hands with Tim.

B. Andy was unhappy about the restaurant his father had selected.

C. Andy mistakenly thought that Tim was his best friend.

D. Eating xoi with his father gave Andy a stomachache.

E. Andy was upset with Jennifer for making him miss the party.
