NEW QUESTION: 2

A company recently deployed an MS SharePoint Farm that consists of three Web Front End (WFE) servers, three application servers and two database servers. Avamar backup software setup and configuration was completed according to EMC best practices. WFE server #1 was designated as the owner of the backup. The company also decided that they need Granular Level Recovery functionality and installed Avamar GLR plug-in and Kroll Ontrack on WFE server #2. Federated backups of this farm were running successfully for the last 30 days.

One day ago, the SharePoint administrator discovered corruption in the Central Administration content database and is asking to recover individual items using GLR functionality.

How can the company accomplish this task?

- A. Use the redirected restore option with GLR plugin and Kroll Ontrack to extract required items back to the farm.

- B. Use a restore of the entire farm to restore the Central Administration content database.
- C. Use the redirected restore of the Central Administration content database to alternative farm and extract required items from there.
- D. Use a GLR restore and MS SQL administration tools to extract required items back to the farm.
